

conferences. Her research interests center on logistics, operations and quality, resource and capabilities, halal logistics and service, competitive advantage, sustainability and innovation.

Mohamed Soliman is a PhD candidate in the operations department at the school of Management at the Universiti Sains Malaysia, Malaysia. He earned B.S. in Information system from the faculty of Business, Economics and Information System at Misr University for Science and Technology, Egypt and Master of Business Administration in Management Information System from Arab Academy for Banking and Financial Science, Egypt. He has an academic teaching experience. He has published journal papers. His research interests include innovation technology, technology management, MIS, ERP and higher education.